This issue completes Volume V of THE NORTH CAROLINIAN. Twenty issues have been published to date--four issues per year for 1955, 1956, 1957, 1958, & 1959. A Five-Year Index to THE NORTH CAROLINIAN, 1955-59 (Vols. I through V), is planned for publication early in 1960. The Index will sell for $3.00 per copy to help defray the terrific expense of compiling and printing. When you renew for 1960 please indicate whether or not you wish a copy of the Index (so that a sufficient number of copies can be printed) and if convenient send the $3.00 along with your renewal. The Index will be all-inclusive--persons, places, and subjects--and each and every name will be indexed in full.

*

THE NORTH CAROLINIAN will include an annual index in the December issue each year, beginning with 1960, at no additional charge. TNC's subscription rate will remain at $5.00 per year. TNC is very grateful for the splendid support it has received so far, but many more new subscribers are necessary in order to continue publication. Why not send TNC as a gift to some relative or friend?

At Waynesville, N. C. (county seat of Haywood County, about 20 miles west of Asheville), and of interest to tourists from all parts of the United States who visit the Great Smoky Mountain National Park, is located the Smathers National Collection of Genealogy Records from each of the 50 states, pertaining to millions of people, which is the skeleton (exhibit) portion of a vast Ancestral Memorial (National Genealogy Library) Collection of foreign, colonial, territorial, state, church, and other family origin records proposed for creation in Waynesville as a part of a National Genealogical Research Center and as a public service to visitors who seek information regarding their lineage. This National Genealogy Exhibit presents for public inspection one of the largest collections of all state ancestral records to be found outside of the Nation's capital.

TNC is no longer punched with holes to fit a three-ring binder. Those who wish to continue filing their magazines in a three-ring binder may get their magazines punched for a nominal fee at any printing shop. Or the three-ring binder may be replaced by a spring-back binder which holds the magazines in place with no holes necessary.

THE NATCHEZ COURT RECORDS, 1767-1805

One of the most romantic sections of colonial America was the Natchez District, which consisted of territory that now forms seven counties in southwestern Mississippi: Adams, Amite, Claiborne, Franklin, Jefferson, Warren, and Wilkinson. Prior to the formation of the Territory of Mississippi in 1798, the Natchez District, being one of a number of Districts in the Province of West Florida, was ruled by the British from Pensacola, the Capital of the Province. In the Province of Louisiana, of which the Natchez District became a part when taken by the Spanish in 1779, Natchez was apparently also governed directly from its Capital, New Orleans, for more than a year. But after a short-lived insurrection at Natchez in 1781, a Commandant was placed in the District to govern affairs and to record all transactions, etc., which came before a tribunal. Thus the court records of the Natchez District during the Spanish regime are all available from 1781 to 1798. When the U. S. acquired the Natchez District from Spain, it was agreed that all legal land claims would be recognized. To get this confirmation written proofs of title had to be submitted to the U. S. Government for consideration. These land claims, 1767-1805, contain a wealth of information. Prior to the American Revolution the French had induced small groups of German and Swiss farmers to take up acreage in the District. At the beginning of the Revolution large numbers of persons, mostly from the South, but many from New England and elsewhere, moved to the Natchez District to avoid hostilities, not wishing to take up arms on either the British or American side. Many, of course, were loyal Americans, but some were outright Loyalists or Tories. Mrs. May Wilson McBee, of Greenwood, Mississippi, has compiled a huge, 635-page volume of detailed abstracts of these early records--a truly herculean undertaking, and the result is a veritable gold mine of material on thousands of families. Many "lost" relatives may be found to have lived in the Natchez District! Published in 1953; 635 pages, size 8½" x 11", including 31 pages of Index; selling at cost, $15.00. Order from: Mrs. John H. McBee, 1201 River Road, Greenwood, Mississippi.

THE LIFE AND TIMES OF DAVID SMITH, PATRIOT, PIONEER AND INDIAN FIGHTER

This is the life story of David Smith (b. 1753), whose father, John, came to America following the defeat of the Scotch Highlanders at Culloden in 1746 and settled in what later became Anson County, North Carolina. David Smith married, first, in 1772 or 1773 to Margaret Terry, daughter of William and Mary (Raiford) Terry, of Anson County. His second wife was Obedience Fort, daughter of Elias and Sarah (Suggs) Fort, of Edgecombe County, North Carolina, whom he married in 1791. Smith became a Major in the Revolutionary War, and later moved from North Carolina to Tennessee to Kentucky to Mississippi Territory (1798), back to Kentucky, and finally to near Jackson, Mississippi, where he died in 1835. Such full family accounts are a welcome change from the bare names and dates which comprise the bulk of so many family genealogies. 84 pages; size 8½" x 11"; indexed. Price: $6.00. Order from the author: Mrs. John H. McBee, 1201 River Road, Greenwood, Miss.

EDGECOMBE COUNTY INVENTORIES, ACCOUNTS, SALES, AND DIVISIONS OF ESTATES, 1732-1753

Edgecombe County was formed in 1732 from Bertie County. (Due to a political dispute, however, it was 1741 before Edgecombe officially became a county. Nevertheless, Edgecombe deeds, wills, and other court records date from 1732.) From 1732 to 1746 Edgecombe embraced a large area, covered by all of the present-day counties of Edgecombe, Nash, Halifax, Warren, Franklin, Vance, and Granville, and parts of Martin (northwest fourth), Wilson (northeast two-thirds), Durham (northeast fourth), Person (northeast three-fourths), and Caswell (extreme northeast tip). In 1746 Edgecombe County was divided, the western half becoming Granville County. In 1758 Halifax County was taken from Edgecombe; in 1777 Nash County was formed from Edgecombe; and in 1855 Wilson County was formed from Johnston, Wayne, Nash, and Edgecombe Counties.

Perhaps only one-third of North Carolina's adult male population died testate (having left a will) in the 1600's, 1700's, and 1800's. Another third died intestate (without a will), but left property. The remaining third either had no property to will, or else disposed of their property (both real estate and personal property) in their lifetime. (Most widows remarried, so only about one will in ten was made by a female.) These Edgecombe County inventories, accounts, sales, and divisions of estates, 1732-1753, include both testates and intestates. The original court recordings are in the Archives in Raleigh (File No. 37.025) and consist of two parts--part one (170 pages) covers 1732-1747; part two (179 pages), 1748-1753; part two only is indexed. Many of the documents name executors (showing that the deceased died testate), and others name administrators (indicating that the deceased died intestate). Following is a brief listing of Edgecombe County inventories, accounts, sales, and divisions of estates, 1732-1753 (original page numbers are given):-

GATES COUNTY RECORD BOOK A (DEEDS & GRANTS), 1776-1783

Gates County, North Carolina, was formed in 1779 from parts of Chowan, Hertford, and Perquimans Counties (roughly, the northern third of Perquimans became the eastern third of Gates; northern half of Chowan became central third of Gates; northeastern fourth of Hertford became western third of Gates). No major changes have been made in Gates' boundaries since its formation. Present-day Gates County is bordered on the southwest and west by Hertford Co., N. C.; on the north by Nansemond Co., Va.; on the east and southeast by Camden, Pasquotank, Perquimans, and Chowan Cos., N. C.

Gates County's deeds begin with Record Book A (1776-1783), followed by Deed Book 1 (deeds begin 1783), 2, 3, and so on. When the Cross-Index was compiled, Deed Books 1 through 7 were indexed, then Record Book A was indexed, followed by Deed Books 8, 9, 10, and so on. Many of the deeds in Record Book A trace the land title back 50 to 100 years or more, and several of the deeds contain considerable genealogical data. The brief abstracts, below, do not contain all pertinent data to be found in the deeds; full copies, in every instance, should be obtained. Following is a brief listing of the contents of Record Book A:-

On the fly leaf: "Isaac Hunter was Born the Ninth Day of August in the of Christ 1760." Following deed No. 116: "Isaac Hunter his Register Book January Seventeenth day--1784."
